SIMON LUNT

SALES MANAGER – ANALOX SENSOR TECHNOLOGY

Contact: Emma Hignett on 07968 409803

Simon Lunt is Sales Manager for Analox Sensor Technology. His role includes both introducing new accounts and working with established clients. He is also involved in product training and support for Analox's distributors around the world.

Simon, 33, joined Analox in 2008 as Key Account Manager to the Commercial Diving industry. He had relocated to the North East from Manchester in 2001, working originally in sales for the chemical industry, and more recently for Arco, where he ran an internal sales team.

Simon says: "I find working with Analox genuinely rewarding, introducing new products to clients through to seeing those products in use."

For Simon, one of the highlights of working for Analox is the training and staff development, which has included experiencing being pressurised and consequently depressurised in a hyperbaric chamber. Having travelled extensively in the Far East following his degree at Manchester University, Simon is also now enjoying travelling even more widely with Analox.

Outside of work, Simon and his wife live in Ingleby Barwick with their two young children. Whilst babysitting duties preclude Simon from currently enjoying one longstanding love, live music, he still enjoys the escapism and relaxation of bird watching, a hobby which he can involve his young children in.
